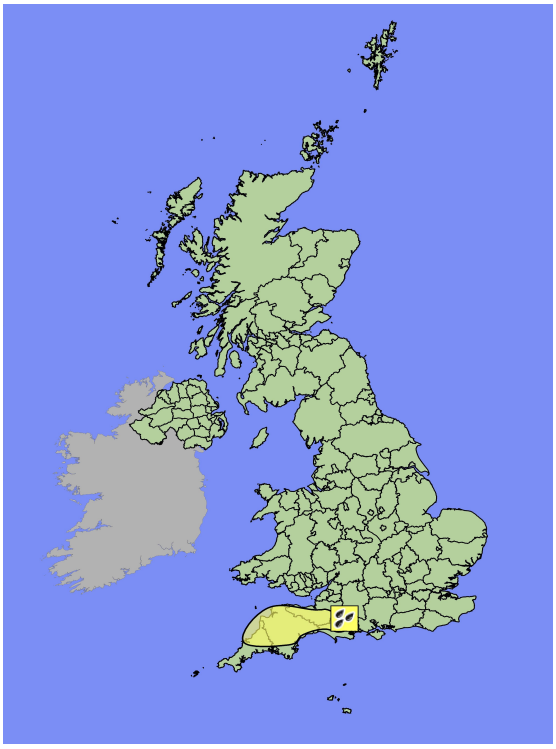
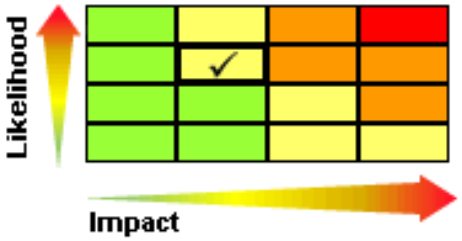
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Heavy showers and thunderstorms have recently developed rapidly in a line through southwest England. There is a lot of energy in the atmosphere today, with potential for a lot of rain in a short period, bringing a risk of localised surface water flooding. Hail, lightning and gusty winds will be additional hazards.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 14:20 on Sat, 30th Apr 2011 until 21:00 on Sat, 30th Apr 2011

Scattered heavy and thundery showers may give up to 10-20mm in places in a short period.
